

Major contract award

Friday 22nd August 2014

The team at James Fisher Nuclear have been awarded a prestigious 5 year contract to support a major defence project.

The team will be responsible for the design and supply of new and innovative equipment to support the manufacture of mission critical equipment to be installed within an advanced technology project. The award which represents over £30M of new business to the team comes as recognition by the customer of the high calibre skills which reside within James Fisher to support advanced manufacturing systems.
